What is the best tactical flashlight?

If you need a powerful light in a durable package, nothing is better than the best tactical flashlight Fenix TK16 V2.0. It is equipped with an IP68 rating, and this light is built to go through just about anything. As a fisheries biologist, I find myself reaching for this light more and more.

Is the Prowess a good flashlight?

While we're not crazy about the charging system, the lantern mode combined with its low light settings make it a very versatile light in emergencies. Purely as a flashlight, the Prowess packs a powerful 5,000 lumens with a commendable beam distance of 245 m.

Is a flashlight good enough?

It may be tempting to say the flashlight function on your phone is "good enough" in a pinch, but there's really no substitute for the superior power and range of a modern LED (Light-Emitting Diode) flashlight. They are bright enough to illuminate a dark room when the power goes out, or to help you navigate the great outdoors in the dark.

The Anduril operating system takes a moment to learn but is a lot of fun. The aux lights are the show-stealer here, though, and here's how they work: the main lights (4 of them) are white (various color temperatures, etc., but "white"). When the flashlight is on, that's what makes it bright. But when the flashlight is off, the aux lights are on.
